Prevent Becoming a Victim of Tech Support Fraud!

- Never give control of your computer to anyone who contacts you. If you receive a call about a computer problem, hang up. If you suspect something is wrong with your computer or believe the scammer obtained access to it, bring it to a malware company for a malware check.

- Don't trust phone numbers provided in an email, voicemail, or popup ad. If you want to call the company, use the customer service number on their official website.
- If you are asked to wire money from a recent deposit or overpayment, discuss the situation with a banker, trusted friend, or family member. Be truthful about the situation since many scammers direct you to lie about why you're sending money.

Have You Ordered a New Debit or Credit Card?

Please note that new debit and credit cards arrive in the mail in a plain, unmarked envelope, which may be confused for spam. If you've ordered a card, check all envelopes that come in the mail!
